Fitch Affirms Santander Consumer Bank AG at 'A-'; Outlook Stable

Fitch Ratings-Frankfurt am Main-29 October 2019:

Fitch Ratings has affirmed Santander Consumer Bank AG's (SCB AG) Long-Term Issuer Default Rating (IDR) at 'A-' with a Stable Outlook. Fitch has also affirmed SCB AG's Viability Rating (VR) at 'a-' and Support Rating at '1'.

A full list of rating actions is at the end of this rating action commentary.

Key Rating Drivers

IDRS, VR, SUPPORT RATING AND SENIOR NON-PREFERRED (SNP) DEBT RATING

The IDRs of SCB AG are underpinned by its standalone strength, as reflected in its VR, and by Fitch's assessment of institutional support from its parents. Its IDRs and Support Rating reflect our view that support from its ultimate parent Banco Santander, S.A. (Santander, A-/Stable/F2/a-) would be extremely likely, if needed. Support could be provided either directly by Santander or via SCB AG's intermediate parent Santander Consumer Finance, S.A. (SCF, A-/Stable/F2/a-).

Santander has a track record of increasing SCB AG's capital to facilitate loan growth, reflecting the group's willingness to support its subsidiary. SCB AG's modest size relative to Santander's underpins our view that Santander's ability to support is very strong. In addition, SCB AG shares its parent's brand name, is closely integrated into SCF and ultimately Santander's organisation and systems. It accounts for the largest proportion of SCF's loan portfolio, with 35% of the total at end-2018.

SCB AG's VR reflects an established business model dominated by consumer financing in Germany, based on adequate risk policies. The bank has so far been able to maintain its strong pricing power and resilient earnings amid Germany's low interest-rate environment.

SCB AG has been diversifying its business model by expanding into mortgage and SME lending in the last few years. However, we expect the bank's operating profitability to remain heavily reliant on dominant consumer finance operations in the foreseeable future. Our assessment of SCB AG's business model reflects our expectation that the bank's expansion beyond consumer finance will continue at a slow rate given challenging market conditions (including intense competition and low margins) in mortgage and SME lending. Conversely, any significant growth in these asset classes would dilute SCB AG's profitability. Significant progress in diversifying the bank's customer base through an increased focus on e-commerce and asset management would support the bank's business model.

SCB AG has gradually diversified its funding profile in recent years and maintains an adequate liquidity buffer. Its main source of funding is retail deposits, which we believe SCB AG has significant flexibility to increase by raising its deposit remuneration if needed. This is because its profitability has consistently been among the strongest in the German banking sector. The bank issued its initial covered bonds and senior non-preferred notes in 2017 and its initial senior preferred notes in 2019. It makes extensive use of retained auto and consumer ABS as collateral to access the ECB's targeted longer-term refinancing operations (TLTRO). Its commercial paper programme, established in 2018, provides additional flexibility to address short-term funding needs.

Under a contractual control and profit transfer agreement with its immediate parent, the German-based Santander Consumer Holding GmbH, SCB AG up-streams its annual profits in full, which prevents the bank from building capital internally. As a result, SCB AG has relied on capital injections from Santander to underpin its loan growth, and we believe that further support in this form would be forthcoming from Santander, if required. This strong ordinary support from Santander underpins our assessment of SCB AG's capitalisation, which we view as robust.

We assign a score of 'bbb+' to SCB AG's funding and liquidity profile, which we view as reasonably robust. Consequently, the bank's Short-Term IDR is the lower of two possible options corresponding to a Long-Term IDR of 'A-'. This is in line with the Short-Term IDR of its immediate and ultimate parent.

SCB AG's SNP debt is rated in line with the bank's Long-Term IDR as we consider the likelihood of default on the SNP notes to be similar to the likelihood of default of the bank.

SENIOR PREFERRED (SP) DEBT, DEPOSIT AND DERIVATIVE COUNTERPARTY RATINGS (DCR)

SCB AG's buffer of junior and SNP debt is currently equivalent to about 3% of its risk-weighted assets, which is still too small to provide a credible probability of default protection to preferred creditors or to ensure that recoveries in a default would be above-average. Therefore, the DCR, Deposit Ratings and SP debt ratings are equalised with the bank's IDRs and are primarily sensitive to changes in the IDRs.

RATING SENSITIVITIES

IDRS, VR, SUPPORT RATING AND SNP DEBT RATINGS

SCB AG's IDRs and SNP debt ratings are sensitive to Fitch's reassessment of the availability of support from Santander/SCF, in case of need. A downgrade of Santander's/SCF's IDRs would likely lead to a downgrade of SCB AG's VR because the VR benefits from ongoing support from the group, given SCB AG's strong integration into the group. The likelihood of extraordinary support from Santander/SCF is sensitive to a change in their IDRs or in their propensity to provide support. A downgrade of Santander's/SCF's IDRs, the sale of a significant stake in SCB AG or declining importance of SCB AG for the group could reduce the likelihood of support. An upgrade of Santander's/SCF's IDRs could increase the likelihood of extraordinary support and, thus, lead to an upgrade of SCB AG's IDRs.

An upgrade of SCB AG's VR would require significant revenue diversification with limited dilution of the bank's return on risk-weighted assets, as well as an upgrade of Santander's/SCF's IDRs. Deteriorating asset quality, most likely to arise from the bank's unsecured consumer lending portfolio, or strong competitive pressure leading to margin erosion, could lead to a downgrade of the VR.

DCR, SP DEBT AND DEPOSIT RATINGS

The ratings of SCB AG's preferred obligations are primarily sensitive to changes in the bank's IDRs. We would notch the DCR, Long-Term Deposit Rating and long-term SP debt rating once above the LT IDR if SCB AG increases its junior and SNP debt buffer to an extent that is sufficient to restore its viability and prevent a default on its preferred obligations upon a failure of the bank.
